BILL DISPATCHED TO WHITE HOUSE

$789,000,000 Marked for WPA, But Roosevelt Has Pledged 'Every Cent' for Flood Succor.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8 .- (AP)-Congress, at an overtime session tonight, averted a threatened suspension of relief payments. It adopted a compromise on the $950.000,000 relief and deficiency appropriation and sent the measure to the White

The house rejected the amendment previously added to the deficlency bill by Senator Richard B. Russell Jr., of Georgia, which was designed to eliminate the employment of outside persons in regional or state offices of the various governmental agencies.

Under the terms of the amendment all funds appropriated in the deficiency bill, relating chiefly to WPA and relief activities, would be expended with the limitation that not more than one-half of 1 per cent go to paying salaries of persons in administrative or supervisory positions who were not residents of the state or region at the time of original employment. Disagreement over a hor which would have prohibited use of regular departmental appropriations Resolution Also Passed. to pay salaries of personnel lent to congressional investigating committees was the chief difficulty.

Last-Minute Concessions Because of empty relief coffers, however, both senate and house made last-minute concessions and, as finally passed, the "rider" merely would prohibit the borrowing of certain personnel from relief agencies, effective 30 days after enactment of the bill.

Representative Woodrum, Democrat, Virginia, a member of the house appropriations committee which fought for the "rider" announced the campaign for a complete ban on the practice would be pressed when the independent offices appropriation bill, now pending in the senate, reaches the conference stage. The deficiency bill carirs $789,000,-

BILL GIVEN SENATE

The bill was passed after considerable discussion over amendments.

Shortly before passage of the free textbook measure, the first move toward an investigation of the Talmadge administration was taken by the general assembly when the house adopted a resolution to inquire into certain phases of the state government during the last four years.

The house acted on resolutions presented by Mrs. Helen Douglas Mankin, of Fulton county, after a sharp debate, but did not take up the proposed widespread inquiry scheduled 000 for the Works Progress Administration, but President Roosevelt has pledged "every cent" of that sum, if necessary, for relief of flood sufferers.

Rider Causes Trouble.

The "rider" which had caused trouble since the bill passed both branches last week in slightly different forms met serious opposition in the tax returns during the first week tax books were open, than in the same period of 1936, the tax assessors and receivers of the city announced yes-receivers of the city announced yesterday.

J. C. Little, Lee Sudderth and J. Sid Tiller, who comprise the board of tax assessors, said yesterday more than 6,000 persons made their returns last week, and nearly 1,000 others made theirs yesterday. A total of 70,000 names are on the tax books.

The assessors, declaring the prompt action on the part of the taxpayers is "encouraging." urged that returns be made early in order to avoid penalties.

Sun Spots To Lessen Earth's Dust Storms

NORMAN, Okla., Feb. 8.—(AP)—
Gathering tempests of the sun may bridle dust storms in the southwest this year. Professor C. J. Bollinger, head of the University of Oklahoma geography department, said tonight. Bollinger said solar cyclones, or sun spots, are raging and probably mean more solar radiation, more evaporation of waters from the Gulf of Mexico—more moisture for the winds that fan the southwest.

He said the southwest will have dust storms in 1937, but an increase in rainfall should reduce their intensity "for the next two or three years." Present evidences of solar radiation, if continued, may mean 10 more inches rainfall for the southwest in 1937, he added.

Authorities have said nothing converning a possible motive for the girl's death. A strongly substantiated report late today that a seventh member of the night club party is sought indicated a break is near in the investigation.

The person described as the seventh member of the party was reported to have ridden in an automobile to the night club with the other six.

Mr. William S. Knudsen, executive vice president of General Motors, met with Governor Frank Murphy, of Michigan, and Mr. John L. Lewis, Wednesday morning, February 3. Subsequent meetings have been held practically every day since that date. In subsequent meetings other associates of the respective parties have joined. The conferences have been held as a result of the request of the President of the United States, conveyed to us through Governor Murphy. The fact remains that at the time the sit-down strikers were still in possession of certain of the corin possession of certain of the cor-poration's plants. The position of the corporation from the beginning has always been, that it was willing to negotiate with representatives of the union as soon as the strikers discontinued illegal occupancy of its plants. Governor Murphy informed Mr. Knudsen that it was at the request of the President of the United States that General Motors should enter into negotiations on this point. Accordingly, such negotiations have taken place. No other issue has been discussed and no agreement has been reached on this or any other point.

The union claims it is entitled to exclusive bargaining rights for all workers in plants on strike even workers in plants on strike, even those outside its membership. This position really means that if 500 workers sit down and throw 10,000 other workers out of employment, this act of violence is sufficient au-thority to permit the union to speak exclusively for the 10,000 employes thus deprived of work. Furthermore, the illegal possession of the plants to make this effective is to be reinforced by defiance of both the law and the mandate of the court.

$900,000 or more.
Strickland advocated placing the limitation at "less than the amount received the previous year" as means of definitely illustrating the economy policies of the government. Savage is to redraft the budget bill and it was considered probable that the limitation would be placed at a larger amount but less than the total.

The budget bill would have far-reaching effect in the future policy of the city because it would prevent overanticipation by any budget com-asking council to formally protest the alleged "inequalities of tax assessments" between the city and county. "Further, I am prepared to cut off the water supply of those living outside the city if any emergency arises overanticipation by any budget commission.

Proposed changes in the water rates, as outlined by W. Zode Smith, head of the water department, include reduction in the amount of water supplied by a minimum charge. By reducing the quantity from 800 cubic feet to 500 cubic feet, the city would realize an additional $200,000 per year, he said. A change in the discount allowed per 100 cubic feet above the amount for the minimum charge would result in an additional $72,000 per year for each cent reduction.

Small Users Unalitected.

Smith said the minimum change at the water works as it did last summer," Hartsfield said.

To Seek Annexations.

Though he did not present proposed legislation to extend the city limits, the mayor said he intends to push this move to bring Buckhead, Druid Hills and other sections within the jurisdiction of the city. However, the meaning the city of the city. tion of the city. However, the ma-jority of the Fulton delegation, to which the legislative program will be submitted for presentation to the gen-submitted for presentation to the general assembly, was said to oppose the annexations.

Atlanta proposes to spend the additional revenue obtained by the legislation in the following proportions: $300,000 would be used for retirement of the deficit over a period of five years; $300,000 would restore and adjust salaries of city employes; $330,000 would automatically go to the school department; about $225,000 would be used for emergency relief this year, and $300,000 probably next year, and the remainder of the $1,412,000, or $257,000 would be spent in purchase of necessary fire fighting ma-years. Part of this additional money would be earmarked for the reduction of the deficit, while part of the addi-tional money from the water rate change would be earmarked for Water Department equipment. The mayo said the city tax rate hike is bes for the taxpayer because if tax assess ments are raised, it will mean addi-tional money has to be paid the Earmarking of money from the revenue-raising measures will cut the amount that the schools would re-ceive as their 30 per cent of all city revenue. It was estimated, however, that the School Department would re-ceive $330,000 or more than its share of the money not earmarked. It is probable that the ad valorem

It is probable that the ad valorem tax increase will carry the provision that the whole or a major part of the increase automatically ends when the deficit of $1,700,000 is wiped out. Five years is the period thought sufficient to clear the deficit.

The proposed legislation would provide sufficient revenue for emergency relief appropriations to total not more than $300,000 per year. The city this year appropriated $75,000 only and the Fulton Welfare Department faces another crisis within two months, another crisis within two months, when this amount is distributed to the needy. Though administration costs have been reduced, it was conceded that the city must provide more relief than it ras appropriated if 10,-000 emergency relief cases are to be cared for throughout the year.

THIS IS NO TIME TO TAKE CHANCES WITH COLDS

Especially During This Treacherous Winter Weather When Colds Are More Of A Menace Than Ever, Your Family Needs This Extra Protection

1. To Help PREVENT Many Colds-Keep out of crowds. Get plenty of fresh air, rest, and sleep. Eat light, wholesome food. Drink plenty of water. Keep elimination regular.

Watch yourself and your family after any exposure likely to be followed by a cold. Then-at the first sniffle or sneeze, or the slightest irritation in the nose-quick! put a few drops of Vicks Va-tro-nol up each nostril. Va-tro-nol is specialized medication, expressly designed for the nose and upper throat, where most colds start. Used in time, it helps to prevent many colds or to throw off head-colds in their early stages.

2. To RELIEVE a Cold Sooner—If a cold strikes without warning or gets by even the best precautions—as some colds always will—go straight to bed. Eat lightly and drink plenty of water and fruit juices. For prompt relief, use this vigorous treatment with your dependable Vicks VapoRub.

Massage it briskly on the back (between and below the shoulder-blades) as well as on the throat and chest, for 3 full minutes. Then spread a thick layer over the chest and cover with a warmed cloth. Long after you relax into restful sleep, VapoRub's famous poultice-vapor action continues for hours to loosen phlegm, ease coughing, and help break up local congestion.

Sickness from Colds Cut in Half!

These two easy steps are the basis of Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds. Vicks Plan is a simple, practical plan which any mother can easily follow in her own home. It is also a tested plan. In the most extensive colds-clinic of its kind ever conducted-among 17,353 subjects-Vicks Plan resulted in fewer colds and shorter colds—cut down sickness from colds more than half!

A few felt that the move would cause Mr. Roosevelt's popularity to decline. They figured that it would confirm the political suspicions voiced against him, but, more important, that it destroyed his formerly advantageous political position. It would force upon him a direct responsihours, wages, working conditions, farm prices, and all complained-of ills. POWER There is another equally important hidden reason. The power of a popular president over his party members in congress is so strong that any legislator who arises against him thereby invites automatic political death.

To live, congressmen need support of the leaders of their party. They must get their committee assignments from the top. (Note—The experience of young Senator Rush Holt, of West Virginia, now being chastised by senate leaders for rebellion.) They must get executive appointments for their friends back home, if they are to keep any friends. (Look at the 50 new judgeship appointments which may be opened up by the suggestion, and remember that most legislators are lawyers, with law partners and legal friends looking for judicial appointments.) If their wives are socially inclined, and two-thirds of them are, they court social oblivion in the dining circles of state for at least four more years by opposing the wishes of the powers-that-be. (Look at the 50 new judgeship appointments which may be opened up

When the President's message came up, he studied it for a couple of hours, declining to comment, then

"I am for the bill." His explanation was that he, a Democrat, had found that Taft once said no one above 70 should be a judge, so, therefore, it would be all right to give Mr. Roosevelt six more appointments to the supreme court.

BACKGROUND The inside scene in which Mr. Roosevelt moved to revise the constitution without changing it was lost in the shuffle when he submitted his sensational message to congress. It should be painted to hang alongside the signing of the Declaration of Independence, Washington at Valley Forge, and Coolidge taking the oath by the light of an oil lamp. It was 11 a. m., last Friday. Two hundred newsmen filed in to the circular presidential office, where he was seated at his desk. Behind him sat his publicity experts, Charles Michelson, Steve Early, Marvin MacIntyre, the men who tell him what popular effect his moves will have.

The President lit a cigaret in an amber holder and announced with a flashing glint that he had a matter "somewhat important" to announce. He cautioned reporters not to mention the matter to anyone outside their own offices until the reading of his message in congress actually A voice from the audience called out that everyone had brought his lunch. The President led the laughter.

Then he started to read his message, pointing out what he considered the significant things the newspaper should stress. His voice had a barely noticeable quality of strained emotion. It was pitched a couple of notes higher than his ordinary conversational tone. Obviously, he was aware of the importance of the setting, but he broke the text with sly observations, indicating he was not overwhelmed by solemnity.

MERRIMENT The President stressed particularly the line that no one else is charged with the responsibility of reorganizing the judiciary, and, when he came to the point about justice riding circuit in the Washington administration, he observed in a pointed aside: they actually rode on horseback in those days. It might be called the pre-horse and buggy era." The audience roared at the sarcasm in his

When he came to the point about the ages of the justices being "a subject of delicacy," he read the words with such mock emphasis that his ever appreciative audience again tittered so much he had to pause before continuing. Laughs broke out frequently thereafter, heaviest and longest when the President identified Justice McReynolds as one of the two attorneys general who he said had once recommended appointment of additional judges in courts whose aged justices would not retire.

The humor of the reference was striking to the audience, as Mr. McReynolds is now one of the supreme court justices whose retirement is most desired at the White House.

But the climax came when the President explained in a pointedly casual manner that the text of the bill he was submitting to congress was "just something for them to work on—just to save them the trouble of writing something." The audience well knew how congress hates to be put in the rubber-stamp category by having the text of the bills sub-mitted by executive authorities. The President joined in the merriment over his own solicitude about saving congressional time. It is told, in the unwritten mythology of Greece, that a confirmed Retsina drinker died. In itself, they say, this is unusual, because the health-giving propensities of the wine are so fine it is rare for a really steady Retsina imbiber to die at all.

However, this Retsina drinker of the story died. And they wanted to bury him. The Retsina, however, had made him. The Retsina, however, had made his digestion so perfect that, although the man was quite dead in every other way, his stomach refused to die. It kept right on digesting and working as a thoroughly healthy and vigorous stomach should.

They waited two weeks for the stomach to join the rest of the man in death and finally they had to shoot it so they could bury the body entire.

Letters from numerous residents of Cave Spring have solved the question debated here a few days ago. The name of the town is "Cave Spring" and not "Cave Springs," despite United States Census reports, official Georgia maps, etc., to the contrary.

A Little Fable for Junior's Story Hour

By ROBERT QUILLEN A certain city employed an official magician who instructed the young men and gave them such equipment for life as they desired. To all of them he said: "You now have the pride of youth, but that will soon be gone. You must have something else to give you self-re-spect, for life is scarcely worth living if one feels apologetic, ashamed

One day a young prince came to the magician and said: "I am not wise nough to choose the equipment I should have. Show me how it is "Very well," said the magician. "Stand with me here at the window and observe the men passing by."

The first to pass was a middle-aged man, obviously embarrassed and ill-at-ease, who seemed to be trying to escape notice.

"He had pride enough at thirty," said the magician, "but his self-respect was based on his good looks alone. When his hair and teeth came out and his concave middle became convex, he was licked."

The second man seemed prosperous and normal in every way, but there was a whipped look in his eyes.
"He was proud of his strength," said the magician. "Used to brag that he could lick any man in the state. When age and dissipation sapped his strength, he had nothing left."

The third man rode in a carriage and his dress and manner proclaimed him a proud aristocrat, but his head was bowed in shame. "His was pride of family," said the magician. "Being one of the Joneses seemed so wonderful that he felt no need of anything more. But his brother looted a bank and his son shot a chorus girl, and you can't stay proud of a family like that." The fourth man showed signs of trying to drink himself to death. "Money," said the magician. "He had barrels of it and it made him proud and arrogant, but that was all he had to keep his chin up. When the market collapsed under him, he got drunk to forget his shame. His self-respect had no support but his bank roll."

The fifth man seemed ordinary and unimportant, but his gait and his countenance revealed the placid assurance peculiar to solid and contented men who are secure and know it.

'There," said the prince. "That's what I want." "That," said the magician, "is one of my triple-insured jobs-character, knowledge and good sense. The world can hurt him, but it can't hurt his pride, for the foundation of it is within him." (Copyright, 1937, for The Constitution.)

School teachers, policemen and firemen seem especially sensitive to the proposal that they should pay the same dues to the government as other people who draw the same income. It is see no reason for this indignation, however, even though I readily grant that the income tax return from their salaries would be comparatively small. The point is that the tax was designed to affect all income from whatever source within the brackets established by law. They have no more moral right to exemption than any other person earning the same wages, and it is a strange awe of the constitution which exempts them at a time when the constitution is being ripped to tatter to accommodate the impatience of the administration.

Many Students Unprepared To Face Life, Says Cumberland University Head.

Education faces a new challenge to-day, with its purpose to give youth not merely knowledge and technique, but to lead them to creative thinking and living, according to Dr. Ernest L. Stockton, president of Cumberland-University, Lebanon, Tenn., who spoke last night at a dinner given in honor of the educator and his wife by At-lanta alumni.

Dr. Stockton declared that even on Dr. Stockton declared that even on the lower levels, particularly in secondary education, the majority of students probably are being sent into life with a mere smattering of knowledge, without any definite preparation for a "specific life task" and evidently without a broad understanding of the greater values of life.

"In the early years of college we should not expect students merely to repeat the things they have learned in high school or to continue the same processes." Dr. Stockton told the alumni. "Rather, we should teach them the logic of reaching their own conclusions.

"After all, a college education is not so much a matter of materials and ma-chinery—a means of successful achievement—as it is a process of dis-covering what we are what we ought to be and what kind of world we should build."

Dr. Stockton is visiting Atlanta to discuss with local alumni the plan of organizing the Cumberland council pro-proved last week, is balanced at approximately $2,900.000. However, the schools will receive from the state about $36,000 more than was anticipated in the year's finance sheet.

This amount would be applied to the 2 per cent salary restoration and the remaining amount necessary would be found by reductions in a number of appropriations within the budget, it was said.

The school board has the power to change the appropriations within the budget, after the sheet has been approved by the mayor. It was said members of the board favor the restoration and that the effort for the increase will be successful today.

Governor Murphy was unperturbed by threatening letters attempting to influence his course in the strike situation or by any movement for his recall. Such a movement was supported by a small Detroit community weekly of free circulation.

MEMPHIS, Feb. 8.—(R)—The crest of the great Mississippi flood rode majestically past Memphis tonight while a high wind, piling waves against the levee tops, caused anxiety but no serious damage.

Following its argument over the Talmadge inquiry the house entered upon another long and drawn out controversy over the schoolbook bill which climaxed when the house heard it charged that the bill would "leave the way open for a schoolbook trust." However, after the long agrument there was only one dissenting vote against the bill.

The argument ensued over the provision for uniform textbooks.

It was cruel to see the number of vacant seats. And it was laughable to recall all the Atlantans who have been heard to say, in recent years, "If we only had a good stock company." Or "a good road show." or good legitimate shows of any kind.

If there aren't any larger houses at the remaining performances of "Around the Corner" there is only one request to be made. That is that not a single Atlantan among the huge crowds who stayed away from the Atlanta theater last night ever again say anything about lack of a speaking stage.

The performance was all that could be desired. The play is, as said, extremely interesting from a number of viewpoints. It is interesting as an example of the newer school of the playwright and it is interesting for

On Our Payrolls Today ... 33.9% MORE PEOPLE Than Four Years Ago

Georgia Pennies Are Powerful Pennies

All through the years, in good times and bad, the cost of electric service to Georgia homes has been going steadily down. The average penny paid by our residential customers today buys more than twice as much electric service as it bought eight years ago!

Georgia Power Company

On January 1, 1933, there were 3,621 names, in all, on our payrolls. The year that followed was generally filled with the darkest of business doubts, but by broad planning and hard work that year's workers made it possible to increase their number to 3,632 by early 1934. Total jobs numbered 3,901 the first day of 1935. Brightening horizons on January 1, 1936, found the Company with 4,292 employes. Today, with business definitely on the upgrade, there are 4,850 Georgia men and women on our active roster --- a 33.9% increase in four years --- the largest force the Company has ever boasted---champions of an electrified Georgia!---a useful army in Georgia's march to complete recovery.

Lovely Mother and Baby Son

By Sally Forth.

I T HAS just come to light that "They Paid the Price," the intensely interesting mystery story being published in the daily Atlanta Consttution, was written by Alice Campbell, a native Atlantan. She lives in London, which has been her home for 20 years, and Alice is iden-tified with the literati there. She is a sister of Mrs. Hinton Hopkins, of Atlanta, and made her last visit here about six years ago. Her next visit to her sister is scheduled for next fall, when Alice comes to the United States to arrange for the publication of other mystery stories.

Every mystery story authored by Alice Campbell is instantly accepted, because she writes in an intensely interesting vein which captures the immediate attention of her readers. Blonde and lovely Alice belongs to leading and well-known Georgia families. The Ormond family boasts of many gifted writers within the fold, and Alice is one of the most talented members.

SUCH a fascinating cruise through the West Indies as Mrs. John S. Spalding and her attractive daughters, Betsey and Sally Spalding Mooney, are soon going to embark upon is the envy of most stay-at-homes. They leave Sunday for New York, where they will spend several days before sailing on February 17 on the S. S. Brittanic for the Virgin Islands. From there they sail on, making stops at Martinique, Barbados, Trinidad and Grenada, where they will spend leisurely hours viewing the e beauty of these romantic places.

Two charming spots of Venezuela, La Guayra and Caracas, will next be visited by the At-lanta party, and then they will go to the lovely island of Curacuo. They will so or cura-cuo. They will so or for a short while in Cartagena, and thence to Panama, where they will visit Golon. They will en-train there for Panama City, and this journey will afford them a grand view of the Panama canal. Back in Colon again, they will board the ship for Kingston, Jamaica.

Those popular resorts, Havana, Cuba, and Nassau, in the Baha-mas, will be visited by the Spaldings, and then they will turn toward home, arriving in New York after 20 days of marvelous cruising through tropical waters.

interest to Atlantans. It seems that a trio of popular Macon matrons, Mrs. Elliott Dun-wody Jr., Mrs. Angus Birdsey and Mrs. C. L. Pennington, recently went on a visit to New York and they saw Frances quite a lot. She gave them tickets for the dress rehearsal of the opera, "Caponsacchi," in which Tibbett and Helen Jepson were singing. Frances is as gifted musically as she is beautiful, you know, and she has entree to all kinds of interals, etc., that are barred to other people. The Macon visitors sat in her box for the performance of "Samson and Delilah" when the Swedish singer, Madame Wettergren, made a perfectly ravishing Delilah. ing Delilah. We summarize the new Coat Silhouettes

You may put on one of the Schiaparelli successes: snug through the ribs, swinging of skirt, and always with accent on back interest . . . You may go a step further to look the Alix way -your skirt a great circle of fullness . . . Or you may take to the new straighter swagger, like a box ... Or sport a "jigger," abbreviated casual, dressmaker-detailed . . .

Whatever, you're right. This spring, youth is the motto and femininity the one rule.

I suggested Anne Shirley, but, because she is un-der contract to another studio, she was turned down. We finally decided on June Lang. She was working that day, so we gave up the idea-entirely. I saw her at lunch with Vic Orsatti (her ex-fiance), and for fun I sent him over a note, 'So you won't lend June to me for an hour, hey?'' Mr. Orsatti did not think the note funny. In fact, he scowled. A columnist at the same table read the note and printed next day that Miss Lang and I were romancing. And I was trying to be so good while Sonja (Henie) was in New York, too! Fortunately, June had dinner with Howard Hughes, and Orsatti's attention was directed away from me. No wonder Howard set up a new flying record to New York!" was turned down. We finally decided king would furnish the tenth trick, but South saw no reason to trust to luck.

You'll be king would furnish the tenth trick, but South saw no reason to trust to luck.

A diamond finesse was declarer's next idea. In order for that to lose the game, East would have to have the diamond queen and West the club ace. This was a pretty good chance, but South could see a better one, which involved keeping East out of the lead during the entire play of the hand.

West therefore was allowed to hold the first trick with his queen of hearts (although if East had played his king. South would have won and returned the nine). A second heart was taken by the ace, and was followed by two rounds of trumps. Then the last heart was ruffed, and a low diamond led from dummy.

When East played low, South played the nine. This, too, was a finesse, but against the ten instead of the queen. If East had the ten of diamonds, South's nine either would win the trick or knock out the queen. In either case South would make an extra diamond trick. And even if West had the ten, there still was the chance that the queen of diamonds would drop on the king or ace. By

BEAUTY IS AS BEAUTY DOES. Coffee, 1 tsp. cream
"With a little courage and daily ex"I rounded tsp. sugar "With a little courage and daily exercise, any woman can be lovely," says Lynne Fontanne, glamorous Broadway acress. When we see someone, like Miss Fontanne scintillating across the stage in a hit play, we like to believe that beauty of face, voice and figure were handed out at birth in lieu of the proverbial silver spoon, when, as a matter of fact, in most cases, determination and superb vitality are the secret of that intangible thing called beauty.

Typical Fontanne advice to the woman bent on charm is: Stay out of the rut—a rut is the certain death of beauty. Too often women will plod along for years so absorbed in their duties of being good wives and devoted workers, that they neglect themselves. With a little courage and daily ex-duties of being good wives and devoted mothers that they neglect themselves shamefully.

Miss Fontanne will never get into Miss Fontanne will never get into a rut. She changes the style of her hair every season, makes play out of work, and fun out of exercise. On the Lunt-Fontanne farm, during summer vacation, they work like farmhands—once going so far as to paint the house! Then, for exercise. Miss Fontanne rides, swims, fishes and gardens. Her favorite exercise is swims, and she indulges in a din as the state of the season ming and she indulges in a dip as often as posisble.

a married son and daughter and a little girl who is dependent upon me. My husband assured me he had plenty for both of us and would gladly share with her besides giving her a home with us. A year later his children began to beg money from him, influenced him against us with the result that they have made a liar and a sneak out of their father. My little girl is as good as a child can be and is always polite to my husband but he resents her being around as do his married children. His own son and daughter pet him, whimper about their hard times, get his money and go off and waste it until they need more, then they come back and do it all over again. HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sunday .- I reached Hyde Park late Friday night and woke to a very pleasant day on Saturday. Snow was on the ground, but not enough to make driving or walking impossible. A long walk in the morning, an afternoon of work and a pleasant, peaceful evening. Another beautiful day today which is being spent in much the same way. This evening I will be back in New York and will take the midnight train to Washington.

A kind friend sent me a book, "Let the Hurricane Roar," by Rose Wilder Lane, which I read through last night. I have always loved stories of people who opened up the west, but I recommend this story to anyone who feels a bit discouraged. These people had courage, the kind that rises above almost any obstacles.

Of course, different days have different difficulties. Those that we face today are perhaps not as simple as those faced by the pioneers. The solutions are more difficult to find, but I think the same kind of courage and determination which conquered their difficulties applied to ours will

In the book, the young wife writes in her little sod hut to her husband lying with a broken leg many miles away: "We are having hard times, but we should not dwell upon them, but think of the future. It has never been easy to build up a country, but how much easier with us, with such great comforts and conveniences, kerosene cook stoves and even railroads and fast posts, than it was fo. our forefathers. I trust that, like our own parents, we may live to see the times more prosperous than they have been in the past, and we will then reflect with satisfaction that these hard times were not in vain."

Perhaps our generation will also live to reflect that our hard times were not in vain. They should make us more conscious of the conditions which we wish to eradicate.

Six girls who belong to a union in New York city, came to see me Friday afternoon. Five of them were unemployed, probably because they belong to this union, which is not a very strong one as yet. The employers, many of whom would like to be fair, are in a competitive business and they cannot afford to meet the demands of the union unless everyone in their line of business is forced to do so too. At present this union cannot hope to be strong enough to accomplish that.

Their demands are not such unreasonable ones-a wage which will make it possible to live decently in New York city-perhaps even enough to contribtue two or three dollars a week to help the families at home or with whom they live, a 40-hour week, a definite period of notice before lay-offs take place and the eradication of a number of other conditions which would probably right themselves with these three basic things settled.

Many people do not believe in unions. Unquestionably, unions and their leaders are not always wise and fair, any more than any other huma beings. There are only two ways to bring about protection of the workers, however, legislation and unionization. So far, the majority of the people in this country seem to favor unions as a more democratic and elastic method, although certain things must be dealt with by legislation. WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

Diana Lake, just returned to Londen, hears from Adrian Somervell, struggling young scientist, that he has inherited the fortune of his stepmother. Rose Waish, ex-star of the theater, who was Diana's godmother. Until shortly before her death, Adrian and she had been estranged. Diana's parents are both of the theater. Diana's godfather, Nicholas Biundell, wealthy bachelor solicitor, lived in the flat below Adrian's stepmother and managed her affairs. Diana's mother is doubtful that Rose died a natural death, and Diana feels she is not too pleased about her engagement. Diana reads in the evening paper that her aunt's body is to be exhumed for an antopy. She meets her father returning home. In the hallway of the apartment they find her mother—murdered. Robbery is thought to be the motive. Now GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"That time I saw him I was with Dr. Somervell. When we went out I noticed—or I thought I did—this rather dreadful looking creature seemed interested in us. I couldn't imagine why."

"Well if you see him again be sure to tell me. Meanwhile I intend to check up on him at this—did you say the School of Economics?"

With a stub of pencil he wrote down a few notes in a little book and read them to her.

"Theafer manager, Felix Arenson: Learn nature of quarrel between him and deceased, query letters in case, discover if his Hampstead garden grows monkshood, and if not, how, when and where he could have got hold of any. That right? I thing so. Corn and feed man name of G. Petty?—ditto, with especial attention to disgraceful entanglements. Study auntie. Next, the secretary—whereabouts unknown."

At this point Bream appeared to meditate.

"We've got to find her Mr. Bream!" Diana spoke urgently. "Do you know what my great fear is now? That she'll commit suicide. It came into my mind the other night when I saw how utterly desperate she looked. For all we know she may already be dead."

"Then her body will be found."

"And if it is how shell we even."

He next asked if Miss Dilworth had kept an account which at no time had been overdrawn. The manage described to home.

"Then her body will be found."

"And if it is, how shall we ever get the truth?"

"Well, well, don't worry. I'll concentrate on her first. These others won't run away."

After she had parted from Mortimer Bream, Diana made her way to the big, cheerful corner house by Charing Cross to order coffee and think matters over.

On the chair beside her lay the noon edition of the Evening Banner. She picked it up and read its rehash of yesterday's court sensation, unable to understand how with news like this to print the paper should devote half its front page to the dull topic of arterial highways. Diana herself had grown weary of hearing about the new minister of arterial highways. Sir Norbury Penge, who, with mysterious means? Bream glanced at the adjacent column, ran back over the preceding pages, and gave a start. Most assuredly this was the case!

At regular intervals over the past six years sums of varying amount had been deposited. During the first three years they were few in number, but they had increased in size and frequency till the largest and last, paid in on the twelfth of October of the present year. To sum it up, Elsie Dilworth had been receiving from a source unspecified anywhere from a hundred and fifty to two hundred a year over and above her stated earnings.

Deciding that his next step must be a discreet canvassing of Elsie Dilworth's fellow workers, Bream first assured himself of Nicholas Blundell's "Jim never gives anything to the community Fund When he gives to come here had the faintest ratios absured and then presented himself at the office, situated in Fetter Lane.

He found two male clerks and a young girl typist. He spoke with each member of the staff, explaining his reason for tracing Miss Dilworth. No one here had the faintest ratios and reason for tracing miss below the community of the community

Reason for tracing Miss Dilworth. No one here had the faintest notion where she had gone, or why she had left her post. Even the senior clerk, who had worked side by side with her for five years, was wholly ignorant of her private life.

Bream led the talk round to the matter of Miss Dilworth's private income. The clerk, Parsons by name, was astonished to learn of any. For several minutes he listened uncomprehendingly, and then he smiled again with a look of indulgent enlighten.

Bream was beginning to form an unpleasant theory as to the reason for the secretary's disappearance. The withdrawal of forty pounds fitted in with it; but he must not be hasty. He remarked that Mr. Blundell must be not only a kind-hearted but a rather Quixotic man. Parsons nodded.

"He's colonial," he answered, as though accounting for much eccentricity. "What I mean is, he takes a broad, human view of things. A bit unexpected till you get used to him, but always in a good humor."

"Does he do much business at his

Parsons replied that certain clients preferred discussion under pleasanter conditions than those offered by the office. Sometimes it was a question of convenience.

"Take Lord Limpsfield — another South African, by the way, and fairly unconventional himself. Well, he always likes doing business over a good dinner and a cigar. I'd saw that in the matter of income tax alone Mr. Blundall has saved him enormous amounts—all quite properly, of course—just from a thorough knowledge of the tax laws."

As there seemed no more to be

As there seemed no more to be gleaned in this quarter, Bream quitted the office, and on his way to Floyd's square, Islington, took stock of his very meager results. Through revenge or other motives, Elsie Dilworth had given information calculated to ruin Somervell, instantly regretted her rash act, and, foreseeing an arrest, made a stupid effort to save him by suggesting an elopement. In this she had failed, whereupon she had become frightened and made off. Either she wished to avoid giving evidence against Somervell, or, herself guilty, she dreaded personal consequences; or—it was certainly a possibility—she had gone into retirement because she was "in trouble." Three alternatives. Which was the right one?

WEAPONS OF WAR. II—In Old Europe.

A thousand years ago, soldiers in Europe had no muskets or cannon. When they went to war, they used bows and arrows, slings and darts, spears, swords and battle-axes.

The sword is a very ancient weapon, and it came into wide use after men learned to use steel for the blades. Many kinds of swords have been made. Some were formed with double-edged blades, others with a single cutting edge. Often there was no blade for cutting, but a sharp point for stab-bing.

Today the sword is a weapon of little value in warfare. Its chief modern use is as a kind of decoration for army officers to wear.

Spears hage an even longer history than swords. Stone-pointed spears were used by Stone Age men to slay cave lions and cave bears. In later centuries spears of bronze and iron were placed in the hands of soldiers who went forth to war.

In England, long ago, almost all the Anglo-Saxon warriors were armed with spears. These were poles of ash wood, eight or nine feet long, with sharp iron points or "heads."

When a soldier died, it was the custom to bury his spear with him. Great numbers of the graves have been opened in recent times, and almost always they have been found to contain iron spear-heads. Sometimes, but not often, part of the wooden pole or handle is found along with the metal dle is found along with the metal point.

Battle-axes were in common use among the Danes and other Norsemen, and the Anglo-Saxons used them when they fought against William the Conqueror. Battle-axes had big blades, often curved, and some were fitted with long handles.

Knights of old Europe carried long spears or "lances." The common length of the lance was about 16 feet. Mounted on powerful steeds, they charged against the enemy. Often they "jousted" with one another for sport, using blunt-pointed lances.

As the years went by, fighting men of Europe covered themselves with more and more armor. This was to guard against arrows and dark, swords and spears.

A metal helmet was placed over the head. Often it covered the entire face except for narrow slits which were left so the knight could see and breathe.

Breastplates, coats-of-mail, and other armor covered almost all the body.

Breastplates, coats-of-mail, and other armor covered almost all the body. An English king said the knights of his time were loaded down with so much armor they couldn't get hurt, and couldn't hurt anyone else.

It looks as if Max Schmeling is to be given a bye in the heavyweight plans for spring and summer. He and his manager are quite hysterical in their unwillingness to accept a bye. But

There is a boycott in existence against Max Schmeling. It may not be the sporting thing, this boycott, but then it is aimed at a very non-sporting organization of which Max Schmeling is an enthusiastic member.

Bud Thomas Signs Contract With A's

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 8 .-(P)—The signed contract of Luther (Bud) Thomas, right-handed hurler, from the Atlanta Crackers, of the Southern association, has been received by Connie Mack's athletics, Vice President Roy Mack announced today.

Thomas will join the Athletics at Garden City. Va., for the spring training jaunt to Mexico City.

Says If Newcomers Come Through, Atlanta Will Win Flag Again.

By Jack Troy.

Hugh Luby, late of the Western league, intends to maintain his basestealing average with the Atlanta Crackers this summer.

Luby, whom the Crackers secured on option from Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics, messaged yesterday that "I intend to steal between 34 and 40 bases this summer."

Now. 'this might seem to have a touch of baggadocio about it, but the fact remains that Luby's average for five seasons of baseball has been 34 thefts per season.

thefts per season.

In the five seasons, two with Norfolk, of the Nebraska State league, and three with Sioux City, of the Western league, the nimble-footed second baseman stole a total of 171 bases.

LURY VERY FAST

LUBY VERY FAST.

LUBY VERY FAST.

Jack Flynn, of the Sporting News, here for the annual Southern Association schedule meeting, reported that Luby is very, very fast.

"I have seen him play from time to time. He reminds you of a sprinter on the bases."

Luby's observations regarding the Cracker club of 1937 are interesting. He points out that loss of several stars weakens the club, but if the newcomers Atlanta has acquired come through, we'll again win the pennant. Ace second baseman in the Western league last year, Luby is expected to supply a lot of color to Eddie Moore's latest edition of the Crackers.

LEO NONNENKAMP.

LEO NONNENKAMP.

In recent years, the most stolen bases were chalked up by Leo Nonnenkamp, of Little Rock. He pilfered 36 in 1935. Others around the 30 mark have been Andy Reese and Billy Bancroft.

The last Cracker to do very much in the way of base stealing was David Irenus (Red) Barron, who filched 25 sacks in 1932.

There is an old saying in baseball, of course, that you can't steal first base. That's true enough.

Luby is an excellent bunter, 'tis said. He hit .319 last year, including 19 doubles, seven triples and 11 home runs.

It may be the art of base stealing will be revived, with Hugh Luby, of Sioux City, setting the pace.

At any rate, he intends to maintain his average in professional baseball, And that is, as said, 34 stolen He stole 40 last year with Siour

A statement by Major Frederic McLanghlin, chairman of the centennial sports committee, that he was not certain his committee wanted to join in the promotion of the contest, started the rumor that all was not unity along the Chicago front.

Triner produced a letter, dated February 5, from John McKinley, general chairman of the celebration committee, inviting the athletic commission chairman to meet Wednesday, February 10, with the committee at the city hall and discuss plans for holding a heavyweight bout here. Trinrer has a second letter, dated February 4, in which Barnet Hodes, general secretary of the committee, said those in charge of the celebration would welcome heartily Triner's efforts to bring the match here.

McLaughlin's statement voiced opposition to the promotional setup under which Mike Jacobs, of New

While the General Motors strike deadlock continued as a cloud over the financial sector, buying stimulation apparently was found in a jump in steel mill operations and other constructive business news items. Brokers thought the controversy over the administration's judiciary reform plans had waned considerably as a market influence and the opinion seemed to prevail that the automotive labor conflict would soon be ironed out satisfactorily. Although the day's price movements were not uniform, owing to lagging utilities and other backward issues, steels, rails, coppers, rubbers, aircrafts and a wide assortment of specialties pushed up fractions to around 3 points. ter demand for issues with a speculative flavor.

Most of today's activity centered in the domestic corporate lists where rails were pronounced favorites. These issues, which generally are influenced by the trend of heavy good industries, received forward impetus from the rate of the steel industry's operations. Baltimore & Ohio 4 1-2s jumped 2 points to 79 1-2, Northwestern 6 1-2s were ahead 2 at 69, Southern Railway general 6s advanced 1 3-4 to 105 and Alleghany stamped 5s added 2 at 68. The Associated Press averages for 20 rails gained 2 of a point to 98.

Cotton news was largely made up of speculation on the amount of loan cotton that was moving and what would develop at Secretary of Agriculture Wallace's meeting with the agricultural leaders. One report was that only 75,000 to 100,000 bales of loan staple had been repossessed in the first week of this activity.

The weather was normal for this time of the year, with temperatures about as expected and little unwanted trains. Plowing was reported from many sections.

additional price rises for finished steel products for the second quarter.

The Amercian Iron and Steel Institute announced January steel production at 4,736,697 gross tons, a gain of 7 per cent over December and 55 per cent over January, 1935. Production during January was slightly more than 81 per cent of capacity, the highest operating rate since February, 1930, when operations were at 84.47 per cent.

But the General Motors situation continued gloomy. The company reported January sales of 103,668 units compared with 239,114 in December and 158,572 in January, 1935. While the decline from the previous month and the second of the second of the decline from the previous month and the second of the second o

AVERAGE PRICE.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 8.—(P)
The average price of middling cotton today at 10 southern spot markets was 12.94 cents a pound.

For the month to date, 12.95 cents a pound.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 8.—(P)—
Cotton closed in an irregular manner today from 2 points lower to 7 points higher, a price movement that was largely brought about by switching operations on the part of the trade.

Holders of long cotton transferred their holdings from the near to the more distant positions. This technical action tended to bring small recessions for May and July while October and December moved up a few points.

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Coffee today made new high levels for the season and the highest price touched in some positions since 1934 on a renewal of Brazilian and European buying.

Santos opened 3 to 10 points higher and closed 7 to 8 higher; sales 29,500 bags. New No. 7 opened 3 to 7 higher and closed 3 to 9 higher; sales 14,000. Closing quotations: Santos, March 10.94, May and July 11.00, September and December 10.00; new No. 7, March 7.60, Maq 7.72, July 7.77, September and December 17.78.

The local spot market was firm at 94 for Rio 7s and 114 for Santos 4s. Cost and freight offers from Brazil were scarce on account of the holiday, but those here ranged from 11.70 to 12.00 for Santos Bourbon 3s and 5s.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8 .- (AP) -- Severe dust storms in Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas, with sudden cold following high temperatures throughout much of the domestic winter crop territory, forced wheat prices upward today.

A decrease of 2,262,000 bushels in the United States wheat visible supply total was larger than expected, and this was also an uplifting market factor. It was pointed out that the rate of reduction implied the amount of wheat remaining would be unusual-of wheat remaining would be unusually small on May 1.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were 1-2 to 11-8 above Saturday's finish, May 135 to 1351-8, July 1173-8 to 1171-2, September 1131-2 to 1135-8; corn 15-8 to 23-8 up, May 1095-8 to 1093-4, July 1031-2 to 1035-8, September 971-4 to 973-8, oats 1-4 to 1-2 advanced, May 511-8 to 511-4, and rye varying from 3-8 decline to 1-4 gain, May 1121-4. In provisions, the outcome was 2 cents.

to 7 cents higher.

Scantiness of receipts of corn only 45 cars in Chicago today, together with adverse weather, went far toward putting backbone into corn and oats prices. Heavy snows northwest tendprices. Heavy snows northwest tend-ed meanwhile to make rye values lag as compared with wheat. Provisions traders largely took their cue from the corn market.

PRICE TRENDS IN 1937

Many unusual factors now guide security and commodity prices. International unsettlement, trade restrictions, labor problems, crop and credit control and other influences today affect the trend of corporate earnings and commodity prices. Fenner & Beane has developed extensive sources of information regarding specific industries and commodities, making available to customers and other accredited indifacts which may prove helpful in shaping their course with a view to fundamental developments.

In less than an hour, the famished adventurers were tearing away at antelope steaks. "How thrilling," bubbled Princess Sborov; "just like camping out, isn't it?" "Quite similar," Jane replied dryly. Soon the food had restored party's drooping spirits.

But Tibbs was thinking ahead. "If I may be so bold as to inquire, Milady, how are we going to get out of here and back to civilization?" For a long time Jane stared into the gloom of gather-ing dusk, then answered gravely: "That's what I've been wondering!"

RNING! Use Want Ads

In the largest audience of WANT AD readers in the city of Atlanta and environs, it is easy to sell personal possessions for which you can find no further use.

It is easy to sell automobiles, real estate, personal services, and countless other articles; it is easy to rent rooms, find "paying guests," recover lost articles, rent houses and apartments-in fact, almost anything you WANT. to do can be accomplished with well-worded WANT AD ADVERTISING in The Constitution. Here's How You Win $100,000.00 First Prize

ODAY, while you are reading these words, make up your mind I to win $100,000.00 - ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS CASH-First Prize in this contest of skill.

It's easy to give yourself this opportunity. Today is an ideal time to enter. Everything you need in order to enter is included in this announcement.

A $100,000.00 fortune, sufficient cash to bring you financial independence for the remainder of your life, can be yours as First Prize in this contest, a contest in which you do not depend upon luck or guesswork, a contest in which you will have your own SEPARATE AND INDIVIDUAL FILE. And your ENTRY will be safeguarded and protected, and available for your inspection for comparison with any other winning entry at the conclusion of the contest. Have you ever before in your life had such an excellent opportunity to win great wealth?

You win in this contest by solving a series of puzzles each week in accordance with the rules. EACH WEEK, for 15 weeks, a series of six puzzles will be offered for solution. The contest has been in progress for one week. Thus, to enable you to start now, we are today reprinting all 6 of the first week's puzzles.

There is nothing hard to understand, nothing complicated about this contest. Follow these 3 suggestions, and put yourself in line to win a cash fortune 1st ... READ THE RULES! Find the name represented by each of the 6 puzzles printed on this page. Below each puzzle is a list of names. Find your solution for each puzzle in the list below the puzzle. FILL IN your solutions on the entry form provided in this announcement.

2nd...Send your entry to OLD GOLD CONTEST, P. O. Box 9, Varick Street Station, New York, N. Y. Mail your entry any time between now and Midnight of the coming Saturday. Immediately upon receipt of your entry, the 2nd week's puzzles will be mailed to you and your name will be placed on our mailing list to receive further puzzles as issued.

3rd...In this contest, each weekly series of solutions is to be accompanied by 3 OLD GOLD yellow package wrappers or 3 hand-drawn facsimiles. Thus, when sending in your entry, enclose 3 OLD GOLD yellow, package wrappers or hand-drawn facsimiles.

Remember! Read the Rules. Solve the puzzles NOW. Make up your mind to enter TODAY. You have until Midnight, Saturday night, to obtain your wrappers (or prepare your facsimiles) and mail your entry.

THE RULES

Please Read Them Carefully 1. OLD GOLD'S PUZZLE CONTEST is open to everybody with the exception of the employees of P. Lorillard Company, Inc., and its advertising and sales promotion agencies.

a group or not less than 90 puzzles, which will become increasingly difficult as the contest proceeds, will be offered for solution. Each puzzle will represent or in some definite way contain clues which will convey the idea of a name. The name may be that of a person, book, song, movie, city, state or nation. The earlier puzzles will be of the more elementary type, in order to assist contestants in familiarizing themselves with the principles for solving this particular kind of puzzle. 2. A group of not less than 90 puzzles, which will become increasingly difficult

3. OLD GOLD will pay a First Prize of $100,000.00 and 999 other cash prizes (a grand total of 1,000 prizes aggregating $200,000.00) to the one thousand contestants who by their submissions achieve the one thousand highest scores through solving puzzles they are called upon to solve under these rules and who in all other ways conform to all of these Official Rules.

4. The puzzles will be issued for solutions in weekly series of sig, and contestants are asked to solve and submit solutions EACH WEEK. The 1st Week's Series of 6 puzzles bears the release date of Monday, Feb. 1, 1937. Each Monday, for fourteen additional weeks, there will be another weekly series to solve. Contestants should solve the puzzles and submit solutions to same during the week following issuance date of each series. In submitting the additions for any current series, a contestant is privileged to submit solutions for preceding series. Thus, a contestant entering the contest during the 2nd week should submit both the 1st Week's Series as well as the 2nd Week's Series; and a contestant entering during the 3rd Week should submit both the 1st and 2nd Weeks' Series as well as the 3rd Week's Series, and so on. All series should be qualified in accordance with Rule No. 7.

5. Contestants are requested to mail their solutions EACH WEEK, in se of six. The various current weekly series of puzzles, together with Entry Forms, may be obtained FREE at any place where OLD GOLDS are sold, or puzzles and ENTRY FORMS may be clipped from newspapers, magazines or circulars and will be equally acceptable.

6. Neatness will not count. Do not decorate your solutions. Just solve the puzzles in accordance with the rules. In case of ties as many of the prizes will be reserved as there are contestants tied before any prizes are awarded for a less perfect submission; that is, if two or more persons tie in submitting the less perfect submission; that is, if two or more persons tie in submitting the correct solutions to all of the puzzles, then the first two or more prizes will be reserved for them and these two or more prizes will be awarded in the order of the accuracy of the submissions to a first or, if necessary, a second group of tie-breaking puzzles; the second group of tie-breaking puzzles to be accompanied by a letter as hereinafter specified. In event a second tie-breaking group of puzzles is necessary contestants eligible to solve same will be required to accompany their solutions to this second tie-breaking group of puzzles with a letter of between 100 and 200 words on the subject: "The increased Popularity of Old Gold Cigarettes in My Community as a Result of the Old Gold Contest." Only in case of ties still existing after submissions to the second tie-breaking group of puzzles have been checked will the accomto the second tie-breaking group of puzzles have been checked will the accom-panying letters be considered, and in that event prizes will be awarded on the basis of originality in description and general interest of the letters. In case two or more letters are judged of equal originality and equal general interest then duplicate prizes will be awarded.

7. To qualify for a prize, the contestant is required to accompany each series of solutions with three OLD GOLD yellow package wrappers, or three reasonably accurate hand-drawn facsimiles. Either will be equally acceptable. It is not necessary to make a purchase in order to compete. A contestant is privileged to enter more than one complete set of solutions, but each entry must be individually identified as entry "A"; entry "B", etc. Each entry will be judged as a unit. No contestant is eligible to win more than one prize, the highest prize won by any individual entry submitted by that contestant.

8. Upon entering this contest and by the submission of solutions to the puzzles, the contestant agrees that the decision of P. Lorillard Company in all matters affecting the conduct of the contest, the acceptance of submissions. the making of awards and the measures invoked to insure in to all contestants shall be final and conclusive. The P. Lorillare Company will establish an individual file for each contestant, but will not be responsible for submissions or communications unduly delayed or lost in the mail either from or to the contestant.

Each weekly series of solutions together with 3 OLD GOLD yellow package wrappers or facsimiles as specified in Rule No. 7, should be addressed to OLD GOLD CONTEST, P. O. Box 9, Varick St. Station, New York, N. Y.

Be sure you have familiarized yourself with these rules. Read them over again and then solve the puzzles.
